ABSTRACT

A method of implementing parallel execution of spreadsheet calculations in a conventional sequential spreadsheet by defining a custom function that passes arguments and a function identifier to an evaluation process that is run in parallel. Interim calculation results are stored in an evaluation table and final results are passed back to the spreadsheet.

10

5

The method can be embodied in an add-in that results in a decrease in the time necessary for a spreadsheet calculation.